★Excuse me. I'd like to cancel my membership at this sports club.

☆Well, before you cancel your membership, I'll need to see an ID card. Do you have one, like a driver's license or a school ID?

★No, I don't have one with me.

☆Sorry, sir. You'll have to bring one to show us. I can't cancel your membership without it.

☆☆Question: What is the man's problem?

☆☆No. 13

★Carla, are you still looking for a waitress job?

☆Yeah, I am. Why?

★The Italian restaurant I work at needs someone to work on weekends. Would you be interested?

☆Yes, I would. Thanks, Dan.

☆☆Question: What is the woman interested in doing?

☆☆No. 14

★Good morning, Melissa. How did you sleep last night?

☆Really well, Uncle Ed, thank you. It's so quiet here in the country—a lot quieter than the street I live on in San Francisco.

★That's good. You must have been tired after your long flight yesterday.

☆Yes, I was.

☆☆Question: What is one thing we learn about the girl?

☆☆No. 15

★Jenny, have you started writing your report for science class?

☆Yeah. Actually, I finished it last weekend.

★I haven't even started yet. But I finally thought of a topic. I'm going to write about the moon.

☆That's a good idea, Larry, but you'd better hurry. We have to turn it in on Friday.

☆☆Question: What is one thing the boy says about his science report?

☆☆No. 16

★Cheryl, how was your trip to Ocean View City last weekend?

☆Well, the weather was great, and my hotel was right next to the beach, but I didn't really like the hotel.

★What was wrong with it?

☆The staff wasn't very friendly. If I go to Ocean View City again, I'll stay somewhere else.

☆☆Question: What didn't Cheryl like about her trip last weekend?

☆☆No. 17

☆Derek, can you wash the dishes for me? I need to go to the shopping mall now.

★I washed them yesterday. It's your turn today.

☆I know it is, but I need to buy a birthday present for a friend at school. I'll wash them for the rest of the week. Please!

★Oh, all right.
