4	I do not think that watching English-language movies is a good way to learn English. There are two reasons why I feel this way. For one, actors in such movies use words and phrases common in real conversation. These are too difficult for most learners. It would be better for them to study basic vocabulary and grammar. Another reason is entertainment. Movies should be for entertainment, not study. Watching movies over and over in order to study kills your enjoyment of them. For these reasons, I think watching English-language movies is not a good way to learn English.
