4	I do not think that more schools will give their students tablet computers in the future because of the cost and changing technology. First, tablets are expensive to buy and to repair. I think that most schools do not have the money to pay for these costs. Second, I think that technology is changing too quickly. Tablet computers may be popular now, but they will soon be replaced by newer technologies. Therefore, I do not believe that more schools will give their students tablet computers to use in class.
