4	Yes, I agree that parents should be stricter with their children. I have two reasons for feeling this way. To begin with, children who have strict parents learn how to follow rules. When these children grow up, they will become good citizens and useful members of society. Another reason is that many children these days are doing poorly in school. This is because their parents do not make them study at home. If these parents were stricter, it is likely that their children's grades at school would improve. In summary, I think that it is important for parents to be stricter with their children.
