4	I believe that more and more people will start buying products that are good for the environment. First, these days, global warming has become a big problem. People want to do something, and they know that one way to help is to purchase these products in stores. Second, many products that are good for the environment are becoming cheaper. Therefore, it has become easier for people to afford such products. In closing, it is because of these two reasons that I think it will become more common for people to buy products that are good for the environment.
