4	I agree that playing sports helps children to become better people. I have two reasons why I feel this way. To begin with, many sports can teach children about teamwork, which will help them later in their lives. This is because they will learn the importance of working well with others. Furthermore, playing sports encourages children to have healthy lifestyles. For example, many children who play sports continue to exercise when they get older, too. In conclusion, these are the reasons why I think children can become better people by playing sports.
