From: John Evans <j-evans9@coolmail.com>
 To: Benjamin Crane <ben-crane@webmail.com>
 Date: May 30
 Subject: Thanks!

Hi Ben,

Thank you for coming to my 16th birthday party last week. It was great to see you and all the rest of my friends there. Also, thank you for the jazz CD you gave me. I've been listening to it every day while I study. It's really relaxing! My sister really likes it, too, and she wants to borrow it.

Anyway, I wanted to tell you about another gift that I got. It was from my aunt who lives in Oregon. It's a book about all the different hiking and backpacking trails in Oregon. It has trail maps, descriptions, and advice on the best camping sites along each trail. Now, I really want to go backpacking in Oregon!

My aunt said she will take me backpacking this summer. She said I can choose any trail that I like. She also said I can bring a friend. Would you like to come with me? I've never been backpacking before. My aunt said it's better to only do a one-night trip the first time. That way, if it's too hard, we can go home the next day. Please speak to your parents and let me know if you can come. See you in school!

Your friend,
 John

While You Wait

Many airports are busy places. Travelers hurry through them to reach their airplanes or pick up their suitcases. The staff are busy and must handle many problems every day. Most art museums, on the other hand, are calm, quiet places. Visitors walk around slowly, looking at the artwork. The staff do not move much at all. Airports and art museums are very different types of places. So, it might be surprising to discover that more art museums are opening in airports.

One example is Schiphol Airport in the Netherlands. Many travelers change airplanes at Schiphol Airport. As a result, they spend time there. The Netherlands is famous for art and art museums, and in 2002, the most famous art museum in the country opened a “mini-museum” in Schiphol Airport. Travelers can enjoy art by some of the most famous artists in the world while they wait for their next airplane.

Other airports are starting to display more art, too. At Heathrow Airport in London, the T5 Gallery shows artwork by young, local artists. Travelers can even buy the artwork if they really like it. Terminal 2 at Mumbai Airport was built to be both an airport and an art museum. The building contains over 5,000 pieces of art from all over India, including both traditional and modern pieces.

Some people do not think that art in airports is a good idea. They say that travelers are too busy to enjoy art. However, more people go to airports than art museums every year. As a result, more people have the chance to see art at airports. Travelers can learn not only about art, but also about the cultures of the countries they visit. Also, art can help people to relax—even if they do not look at it closely—and this helps to make airports more enjoyable places.

What has been happening at airports recently?

- 1 They have been showing posters of famous museums.
- 2 More and more travelers have been arriving late.
- 3 The staff have been helping to carry people's bags.
- 4 Places showing art have been opening inside them.

(35)

Travelers at Schiphol Airport

- 1 have been able to get free tickets to museums since 2002.
- 2 take a long time to change from one airplane to another.
- 3 often meet famous artists while they wait for their airplanes.
- 4 can see art from the most famous collection in the Netherlands.

(36)

What is special about Terminal 2 at Mumbai Airport?

- 1 It displays work by artists from all over the world.
- 2 It allows travelers to buy artwork by young artists.
- 3 It was designed for both travelers and art lovers.
- 4 It lends over 5,000 pieces of art to other airports.

(37)

Why do some people think that art in airports is not a good idea?

- 1 Because fewer people are visiting art museums every year.
- 2 Because travelers want to relax when they are at airports.
- 3 Because airport users do not have time to look at it.
- 4 Because it does not help people learn about other cultures.
