4	I disagree with the opinion that schools today have too many rules. There are two reasons why I feel this way. For one, rules about talking in class help schools create a better learning environment. Without such rules, classrooms would be much noisier places. In addition, rules help schools to maintain safety. For example, many elementary schools make students walk the same route to school every day. By doing so, it is easy to watch over these students and keep them safe. In closing, I do not think that schools today have too many rules.
