4	The number of young people who do not want to work at large companies will increase in the future. First, working at a big company can be very stressful. For example, workers are often transferred to other cities. I think most young people want to choose where they live. Second, there are fewer career opportunities at large companies. It is much easier to get a promotion in a smaller workplace. In summary, I think more young people will not want to start working for large companies.
