4	I do not think that people will stop using cash to buy things in the future. First, online payment systems are not safe enough. In fact, there has been a lot of money stolen from people's online accounts. Second, it is difficult to avoid problems with online systems. If a technical problem happens, people cannot do their shopping with these systems and have to wait until the system has been repaired. For these reasons, I think that people will continue to need cash in the future.
