4	I agree that the government should limit the kind of information that people can put on the Internet. First, by doing this, the government can make the Internet safer for young people. For example, there are some websites with violent content that could have a bad effect on young viewers. Second, I do not think that people should have the freedom to put untrue things online. I believe that it is important for people to be able to trust online information. For these two reasons, I agree with this opinion.
