4	I think people will live even longer lives in the future. First, new technologies are being used to find diseases such as cancer before they become problems for people. By finding diseases early, doctors will be able to offer more effective treatment. Second, people today are taught more about their health when they are in school. Because of this, many people try to get enough exercise and eat a balanced diet. For these two reasons, I believe that people will be able to live longer in the future.
