4	I do not think that it will become more common for elderly people to study at college. First, taking classes at college has gotten very expensive. Since most elderly people no longer work, I believe that it would be difficult for them to pay this cost. Second, people can learn things with the Internet by themselves. For example, there are online videos about almost every subject, and these can be watched at any time. Therefore, I do not think more elderly people will take classes at college.
