4	I think that it is dangerous to make new friends online. I have two reasons for this opinion. To begin with, people cannot completely believe the information written on the Internet. For example, there are some people who lie about themselves on websites and social-networking services. People cannot be sure if they can trust someone they have met online. Next, personal information that has been exchanged online can be used in unexpected ways. For instance, some people use such information to harm people or commit crimes. For these reasons, I believe that making new friends online is dangerous.
