4	I agree that restaurants and supermarkets should try to reduce the amount of food that they throw away. Firstly, a large amount of carbon dioxide is released into the air when food waste is burned. Reducing the amount of food that is thrown away has a good impact on the environment and can help stop global warming. Secondly, it costs restaurants and supermarkets a lot of money to throw away their food. Cutting this cost would allow them to use more money on their products and services. Therefore, I agree with this opinion.
