4	I think that supermarkets that sell food with trucks will increase in the future. First, people who live far from stores can save money on travel costs for shopping. For example, they do not have to drive their cars or take public transportation. Second, this service is a big help for elderly people. It is easier for elderly people because they do not have to carry heavy things. These are the reasons why I think that there will be more supermarkets that use trucks in the future.
