I think the number of such supermarkets will increase in the future. First, many consumers are interested in buying these fruits and vegetables at low prices. Unusual sizes, shapes, or colors do not affect the taste and quality of fruits and vegetables, so people do not care much about their appearance. Second, by selling these fruits and vegetables, supermarkets can reduce food waste. As a result, they can improve their reputation by trying to help the environment. Therefore, I believe such supermarkets will become more common.
