4 I think the government should do more to deal with this situation. First, Japan has a lot of natural disasters, such as earthquakes, which often cause serious damage to old bridges and roads. Therefore, the government should take care to repair and maintain these facilities across Japan. Second, there are some local governments that do not have enough money to keep old bridges and roads in good condition. The government should support these local governments by providing more money to them. For these reasons, I think the government should deal with old bridges and roads.
