4	I do not agree that food shortages will become a more serious problem around the world. First, food can be produced more efficiently by the development of technology. For example, various kinds of farming machines can make it easier for farmers to produce a large amount of food. Second, many countries and organizations are working to improve the situation. They support agriculture in other countries and provide food to areas where there is not enough food. Therefore, I hope the situation will improve and food shortages will not become a more serious problem in the future.
