4	Many people prefer to go and buy new clothes at actual stores. They can try on clothes before buying them to check their sizes and appearances and take them home right away. However, some people may find it inconvenient to spend time traveling to the shops and may not like being spoken to by clerks.
5	I think it is a good idea. First, these universities can expect increasing numbers of applicants. Through these classes, universities can directly demonstrate how attractive their educational programs are, and this will attract more high school students. Second, from the high school students' perspective, these classes will help them make decisions about their future. By attending these classes, they can have a better idea of what they want to study in the future. Therefore, I think it is a good idea that universities offer chances for high school students to experience their classes.
