4	Some countries think hosting the Olympic Games is very important. It raises a country's global reputation and can bring in more income from tourism. However, a host country has to spend a huge amount of money on new buildings and roads and could suffer from overtourism if more tourists than expected come.
5	I think so. First, it helps protect the environment. Some parents buy new toys for their children and throw them away when their children grow older and lose interest. However, if parents rent toys through this service, fewer toys will be thrown away, and this will reduce unnecessary waste. Second, this service can satisfy children's curiosity more effectively at a lower cost. Children will have the chance to try many different kinds of toys and find the ones they really enjoy. Therefore, I think this kind of service will become more common in the future.
