4	Nowadays, more people are choosing to buy electric vehicles. They give off less carbon dioxide and provide people with essential power for daily life in times of disaster. However, it is still hard to find charging stations for electric vehicles in every town, and they are more expensive than gasoline cars.
5	I think this is a good idea. First, professional trainers help people stay motivated. By encouraging people during exercise, trainers help them maintain regular exercise routines and prevent them from giving up before reaching their goals. Second, professional trainers make exercising more efficient. They provide effective advice suitable for each person, and this helps people achieve their goals more quickly. Therefore, I think it is a good idea for people to seek personal guidance from professional trainers when exercising at the gym.
