4	Some governments are considering promoting the idea that universities should be free of cost. More students can have access to higher education and acquire advanced knowledge. However, we need to be aware of the risks. A significant amount of financial expenses is required, and the diversity of higher education may be lost.
5	I think this is a good idea. First, from the perspective of people moving to the town, this policy can be very helpful. They need money for expenses such as renting a house or buying furniture. Second, from the local government's perspective, this can improve the town's financial situation in the long term. People who move to the town will pay taxes, and this will help the local economy grow stronger over time. Therefore, I think it is a good idea for local governments to give money to people who move to the town.
