5	I don't think more children will buy books with pictures and information about plants. These days, it has become easy to look up such information on a smartphone. I have two questions. How many people joined the nature tour? Did you see any animals during the nature tour?
6	Yes, I think so. First, traveling abroad allows people to see different customs and lifestyles. It gives a chance to watch how local people live and work. Second, people can visit historical buildings and places. By seeing them in person, they can learn about the historical value of the culture more deeply than just reading about it in books.
