4	People practice the Slow Food movement by shopping at local farmers' markets. It enables people to connect with their local food culture and supports small-scale food producers. However, it can be expensive because producing food in traditional ways costs more, and the time needed for food preparation prevents individuals with busy schedules from enjoying it.
5	I think this is a good idea. First, it is appealing because it can promote interaction among people. Performers and listeners may naturally start conversations, and these conversations can lead to opportunities for community connections. Second, it can help relieve stress. Even if people are busy commuting or traveling, playing or listening to music can help them relax and offer a brief moment of peace. Therefore, I think it is a good idea that there are public pianos for anyone to play in train stations.
