4	Rooftop greening is becoming more common around the world. It can make the building cooler in summer and help prevent flooding below during heavy rain. However, putting a garden on a roof is expensive because it needs a strong roof and special materials. Also, maintaining such gardens requires a lot of time for special care.
5	I think this is a good idea. First, it can increase employee motivation. When employees have a voice in selecting their managers, they feel more valued and respected, which motivates them to work harder and do a better job. Second, the voting process promotes fairness. Choosing managers by voting gets rid of the feeling that promotions are decided secretly, and it makes the process open and trustworthy for everyone involved. Therefore, I think it is a good idea for companies to enable employees to choose their managers by voting.
