4	Many countries are now thinking more about making rules on non-native animals. Controlling these new animals protects local animals and keeps the natural areas safe. However, controlling new animals is expensive as governments must spend a lot on removing them. Also, some people who want these animals as pets may not agree with the rules.
5	I think this is a good idea. First, it can contribute to employee well-being. These spaces provide employees with a comfortable environment to rest and feel refreshed during breaks, and this helps reduce stress and improve their overall mood. Second, it can create better communication among colleagues and help them work together. Casual conversations in these spaces may lead to new ideas, and they could help the company become more profitable. Therefore, I think it is a good idea for companies to provide spaces where employees can relax or chat with others.
