4	Many businesses use social media to sell their products. It is cheaper than old types of advertising, and businesses can communicate with people who buy their products. However, bad comments or false information, which damage a company's reputation, can spread quickly. Also, it is hard to get people's attention because people see so many ads.
5	I think this is a good idea. First, it promotes a sense of responsibility in students. When students can change the rules, they become responsible for creating appropriate rules and following them. Second, it improves their problem-solving abilities. In changing the rules, students need to discuss problems and work together to find solutions, and this enhances their problem-solving skills that will be useful when they start working. Therefore, I think it is a good idea for schools to allow students to make changes to the rules at their schools.
