4	Home gardening has become popular in recent years. Growing food at home is beneficial because people can eat fresh vegetables. However, using too much chemical spray can be bad for people's health and the environment.
5	Yes, I think so. First, people can give accurate information. When foreign visitors need information about the area, local people can share what they know clearly. Second, people will feel confident about communicating with visitors in different languages. Although visitors come from many different countries and speak various languages, local people will have less difficulty understanding them.
