4	Vending machines are common in cities in Japan today. They are helpful for people in trouble during natural disasters. However, they can be bad for the environment because they use too much electricity every day.
5	Yes, I think people should buy gifts for their friends when they go on trips. First, people can make them happy with these gifts. Their friends will be able to enjoy special food from different places. Second, shopping for gifts is fun. People can enjoy visiting small shops and learning about the local culture while they shop.
